Yugoslav Military Administration of the Free Territory of Trieste—Zone B

Vojna Uprava Jugoslavenske Armije, Zone B Slobodne Teritorije Trsta

On 10 February 1947 by a protocol of the Treaty of Peace with Italy, the Free Territory of Trieste was established. The reasons for this agreement were (i) to accommodate an ethnically and culturally mixed population and (ii) to cool down the claims between Italy and Yugoslavia over the territory. It began operating on September 15, 1947.

The territory was divided into two parts: to the north including the port city of Trieste with a narrow coastal strip to Duino in the north west, a territory of 222.5 Km² and a population 262,400, became the Zone A and was administrated by the Allied Military Government; the other included a small portion of the north-western part of the Istrian peninsula, a territory of 515.5 Km² and a population of 71,000, and became the Zone B administrated by the Yugoslav Military Government.

The size of population will influence the printing of postal values, with larger quantities of each item in Zone A and smaller quantities in Zone B, and therefore in the latter more scarce, both new and used.

Concentrating only on the stationery, the procedure for preparing them was also different. In Zone A provisional items were prepared by manually overprinting them, and definite items were overprinted typographically in Rome. In Zone B, and differently also from the prior Yugoslav Military Administration of Istria and Slovenian Litoral where cards had been specifically printed, only the first issue was prepared as a definite typographic overprint in Belgrade and for all subsequent items the Postal Directorate for the Zone B in Koper would request a quantity of Yugoslav postal stationery from the Regional Postal Directorate of Slovenia in Ljubljana, and these would then be typographically overprinted locally in Koper.

Little information is still available on the whole procedure, as to the specific quantities and the overprinting. Most issues have two versions of the same overprint, but given the scarcity of items (particularly the earlier ones) it is not always clear if the difference was due to the two different printers or if from the same printer with different plates.

Concerning the printers used in Koper, two names surface : one is Pecchiari and the other Jadran. Not too much is known about them.

Undoubtedly, given this situation of little information and control in the area the philatelists had the opportunity to work on sending to themselves or exchanging among them items, also creating scarce and particular uses of philatelic nature, most of which went through the post (many instances with arrival cancels). But we have also items used in the creating of scarce and particular uses with early or late or fake cancels. Great attention should always be exercised in approaching the various items, particularly the used and cancelled ones.

Some confusion was also created by the air letters overprinted for the international surface letter rate. The air letters had to be additionally franked if the airmail service was required.

On October 5, 1954, the London Memorandum was signed giving Italy the right to the Zone A and Yugoslavia the Zone B with effect from October 26, 1954. The agreement was confirmed in 1975 by the Treaty of Osimo. So ended the Free Territory of Trieste.

Exhibit Plan

We are exhibiting the correspondence postal stationery issued during the Zone B FTT/STT period from 1947 to 1954, reviewing them in date sequence. For each issue we are proposing both new and used items. For the new items we are presenting their more common form, and in some cases where more commonly available also some printing errors. For the used items we favoured where possible properly used one also from smaller towns. In various instances, due to the scarcity, we had to resort to correspondence between philatelic collectors and traders, although properly used.

We can divide the period into three main subperiods based on the overprints:

- 1) the long overprints during the Yugo-Lira rate period (9 pages);
- 2) The long overprints during the Dinar rate period (24 pages);
- 3) The short over prints during the Dinar rate period (25 pages).

- 1) After the establishment of free AMG territories on 09.16.1947 the domestic rate perimeter for the Zone B is defined as the entire territory of Yugoslavia, Zone A and Zone B
- 2) On 05.07.1949 new rates in dinars came into force. Postal stationery and stamps in lira remain in use until 11/05/1949
- 3) Due to an oversight a timely notice to increase international postal rates for the Zone B to the U.P.U. was not served. So for a period the Zone B had the absurd situation where the international rates were considerably lower than the domestic.

Concerning this issue we can distinguish two different overprints.

In the first case the second T of STT is exactly under the first T of TLT. In the second case the second T of STT is to the left of TLT.

Examining the valuations in the Yugoslav catalogues, it would seem that the second types are more common.

From the examination of a number of cards, the second type is scarcely found without additional franking, indicating a later printing, probably in the Spring of 1948.

Concerning this issue we can distinguish two different overprints.

In the first case the 'N' in "CARTOLINA POSTALE" is of regular size font compared to the text (see previous page). In the second the 'N' is a larger size font (see below).

This characteristic will carry over into the next issue as the same printing plates were presumably used.

It is to be noted that this issue has many examples of double, inverted, slanted, tête-bêche and albino overprints; albino and regular overprints on the back; also items with two or more of the above.
